Chamberlain Hrdlicka Announces Formation of New Litigation Team in San Antonio Office

HOUSTON – (April 12, 2017) – National law firm Chamberlain Hrdlicka today announced the formation of a new litigation team in the firm’s San Antonio office. The new team brings together the legal expertise and experience of attorneys Justice David Medina, David Calvillo, and John Muller. Wayne Risoli, managing shareholder of Chamberlain Hrdlicka said, “The formation of our new litigation team in San Antonio allows us to provide our clients legal counsel from three highly experienced litigators.”

Justice David Medina has extensive litigation experience in trial and appellate courts. He has served as associate general counsel for an international corporation and as a Justice of the Texas Supreme Court. His experience and perspective makes him uniquely qualified to understand and represent his clients.

David Calvillo is a board certified trial lawyer, professional neutral, certified public accountant and certified valuation analyst. He works with clients in the practice areas of commercial litigation, construction law, arbitration, mediation and tax controversy. He has successfully tried and litigated various matters, involving contracts, business divorces, business torts, professional malpractice, personal injury, and intellectual property.

John Muller focuses his practice on commercial litigation, construction law and tax controversy matters. He has successfully tried and litigated matters involving contracts, commercial leases, business torts, and fraudulent transfers. His tax controversy practice focusses on state and local taxation, audit representation, administrative appeals, and litigation.
